ALTA FESCUE AND KENTUCKY 31

Alta Fescue and Kentucky 31 Fescue are both strains of Tall Fescue, a long lived deep rooted perennial. In test on the soil and crop farms, both at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., and Florida Experimental Stations, the two grasses appear identical both in appearance and performance.

ALTA FESCUE gives abundant grazing over a long period of time on a wide variety of soils, with heaviest grazing in the Winter months. It roots deep and prefers a moist fertile soil, although it grows well on other type soils and also does well on acid soils.

Prepare your land and sow broadcast at the rate of 10 to 15 lb. per acre. Plant from September 15 to March 1 and cover lightly 1/4 to 1/2 inch deep. Be sure and let this crop get well established before grazing. Most Alta Fescue contains some Rye Grass and same can be sowed together where wanted for grazing purposes.

We offer you two lots, one containing 10 percent Winter Rye Grass. and we recommend this for pasture purposes. If wanted for saving seed, we recommend the other lot.

PRICES—Alta Fescue, Purity 89%, Germination 90%, contains 10% Winter Rye Grass per cwt. $45.00
Alta Fescue, Purity 96%, Germination 90% per cwt. 55.00
